During an explosive confrontation of fury, her father finally forces her into therapy. Shortly thereafter, she discovers she has more in common with her therapist than previously thought. And the hauntingly beautiful Tiana promptly finds herself deeply infatuated with her young psychologist. However, she is already bound to his son. Regard, Tiana attempts to use her irresistible bait to persuade his father into a romantic relationship. Ultimately, she soon discovers the error in her failure to heed the following proverbial warning: be careful what you wish for.
