Orcas Island.

Jewel of the San Juan archipelago and a paradise in the Pacific Northwest. Until the nightmares and the murders. As manager of Eastsound's bookstore, Sapphire is accustomed to quiet days and an even quieter love life. But then the night comes. It's then that Sapphire finds herself to be a saboteur in a different body, in a different time. Her nightly exploits could be written off as fantastical dreams if it weren't for this: every morning she wakes with the scars of her adventures in darkness. Morning after morning she gets out of bed sore, bruised, and most inexplicably of all, pregnant. Just when things seem strangest, her nightmare demons break into her world and begin walking the streets of Eastsound in broad daylight. Sapphire must hurry to unravel the mystery of her nightworld and her other self. For her sanity, her unborn baby, and the fate of future generations.
