Love had become just a memory At twenty-eight, Rachel had long since accepted that she was destined to remain single. For some reason unbeknown to her, nothing had come of her love for David -- now almost a vague ache in her heart. Then Jon, a visitor from the past, brought back the long forgotten magic, almost making her change her mind. But in straightening out the muddle of Jon's real love, Rachel got a second chance to follow the right path to David and true happiness.
