A frightened, neurotic young wife. A self-centered man with a change of heart. A terrified child. A handsome, mysterious stranger with ambiguous loyalties. A "misty gray thing". These were to transform a simple visit home into a nightmare for beautiful Yves Petrone - and transform her beloved House of the Pines into a chamber of horrors. What had happened while she had been away? The massive house covered with flowering white vines showed no signs of change - it looked like the house Yves knew and loved.

But inside, something had changed - a specter of evil had taken possession of them all, forcing them into a nightmare game of hide-and-seek.
